CSC's Mediation model is different from others in that equal emphasis is placed on providing opportunities for parties to heal or reconcile their relationship as is on facilitating a negotiated agreement to their conflict. This is important because when people can reconcile their relationships, their willingness and interests in exploring mutually beneficial ways of solving problems between them increases exponentially, and agreements are kept at a much higher rate. If this is of interest to you in your work, your family and your life, this trainings is for you!

Teens to learn Restorative Justice (RJ) principles through ACCOUNTABILITY CIRCLES

Accountability Circles will augment both the RJ services we provide to the juvenile justice system, and also to select schools with whom we work.

The youth in these circles have usually been involved in a long list of harmful incidents, which in many cases include suspension or expulsion from their school and/or involvement in the juvenile justice system.

One of the foundational principles of restorative practices is an awareness that everything is connected and that people's choices in attitude, action, and speech affect other people, whether we acknowledge those effects or not. The other piece to this is the way that restorative dialogue in circle naturally invites youth to begin recognizing that they have something of value to contribute to the world. This recognition of value is a source of power. When this value is authentically lived, both the individual person and the world as a whole are intrinsically enhanced.

PART-TIME POSITION OPEN for Program Coordinator in CSC's Santa Maria office. Lots of potential for growth. Training in mediation and restorative justice provided. Send resume and cover letter to krosa@cscsb.org
